2. One student, [REDACTED] fell ill after the third day of the course. She will complete it under individual instruction.

Course Content & Conduct

3. There were no changes in either the content or the conduct of the course.

Speakers

25X1A

4. All speakers were regular visitors to the course. [REDACTED] C/Central American branch of Central Reference Service, was making his second appearance. His talk was well received, and started a number of questions.

Course Critiques

25X1A

5. These are interesting primarily for the wide range of experience which they reflect. [REDACTED] for example, is an admin officer about to leave for an African post; [REDACTED] is an experienced case officer, newly returned from the field; [REDACTED] is an intelligence assistant from [REDACTED] one of the very few to come from that office; while [REDACTED] represent the newly-joined and inexperienced highschool graduate group. No substantive or procedural changes are likely to result from the critiques, but they indicate the variety of interests with which an instructor must deal.

6. Except for some difficulties with weather, the course went off without incident.
